REPUBLICAN PARTY.

Sir:-For some time the Democratic pe pers have been arouing that "the Republican party must go." This cry is uttered by all the organs of the party from the large city daily down to the 8 by 10 weekly published in the country village. Does the welfare of the United States depend upon the ousting of the Republican party? Has the conduct of the Republican party been such that it demands repudiation at the hands of the people? The Democratic press says that "the Republican party must go." If "the Republican par an party must go." This cry is uttered by swer that would be given by the Democratic newspapers would be "the Democratic party." Let us examine into the history

We will commence investigation during At that time there was a National bank At that time there was a National bank which as a monied institution was entirely safe and responsible. In this bank the public monies were deposited. President Jackson went into office embittered against this bank because he thought the managers of it opposed his election. He ordered the funds belonging to the Government to be removed from this National bank and had them deposited in irresponsible State banks. This National bank was furnishing the people with a sound curreacy from ing the people with a sound currency from Maine to Louislans, which were then conidered the extensive limits of the Union sidered the extensive limits of the Union. Congress in 1832 passed the act rechartering this bank and it was vetoed by the Democratic President and his action was endorsed by a large majority of the leaders of the Democratic party.

During Jackson's administration in 1832 a portion of the Democratic party headed by John C. Calhoun altempted the high-handed measure of nulliving the laws of

As a result of President Jackson's vetoling, the National bank, State banks sprang up all over the United States, many of them partaking of the wild-cat in their character, consequently suspended and broken banks soon became the order of the day. The result of all this was the terrible money panic of 1837 and general financial distress throughout the whole country. Thousands of wealthy business men were irretrievally ruined by this crash. rretrievably ruined by this cresh.

But it was during the administration of James Buchanan that the damning schemes of the Democratic party culminated, and turing the latter part of his administration suring the latter part of his administration tresson "sat quat like a toad" in the White House, whispering its infernal teachings in the car of the servile executive. The ratios in the Democratic party actually stole a large portion of the Government property from its imbecile President. waters of the sweet heavens will wash out." It is the party that made our civil war and is responsible for it.

The Democratic party made a war that cost the people of the United States, including both sides engaged in the contest, nearly one million human lives. This unholy tractical Democratic war made widows by the hundreds of thousands. This unholy war made and becomes the Democratic war made widows by the hundreds of thousands. This unholy by the hundreds of thousands. This unholy war, made and brought on by the Democratic party, made orphans by millions and cost the loyal States four thousand millions of dollars; it desasted the Southern States; it clad the whole people, North and South in mourning; it entailed the heaviest debt on the United States that any nation ever had to bear. The Democratic party is responsible for all that is here charged against it and thousands of other sins that I have not time to mention.

Trans proves that honesty is the best pollicy is medicine as well as in other things. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a gennine preparation, an unequalled blood purifer, decidedly superior to all others.

WHAT HAS THE REPUBLICN PARTY DONE? Let us see what the Republican party has done that demands that it should go in order to permit the Democratic party, in order to permit the Democratic party, with the foul biot of treason and every other inhibited sin of our political canon on its political escutcheon, to come.

The Republican party came into power in 1861, and was met at the threshold by one of the most gigantic rebellions recorded on the historic page. It had to meet this rebellion with an empty treasury, a small and demoral's duavy and a standing army almost frittered on othing by the treason of many of its officers. Our Republican President, aided by a Republican Congress, had to create an army and a navy, arm and President, sided by a Republican Congress, had to create an army and a navy, arm and equip them, and also had to make money to pay the soldiers, which was done by pleaging the credit of the Government. Through its broad and liberal policy the Government, conducted by Republicans specially, raised and equipped large armies and threw them into the field, and not withstanding the tormidable fee with which it had to contend, it fought the war to a successful termination in four years, and as an incident thereof burst the shackles of slavery from 4,000,000 of enslaved negroes. Must the Republican party go because it conquered the rebellion? Must it go because it thereaf the slaves? Patriotism arswers in thundering tones.

ling the Government. The prosperity of the people has been established on a more permanent basis than it ever has been. The great bone of contention (elavery) has been destroyed. There are no sectional questions now to disturb the peace of the Nation. The Republican party has forever settled the matter of slavery agitation which in anti-bellum days loomed up in every election canvass as a disturbing element. State banks which were the cause of great loes to the people annually have of great loss to the people annually have been abolished by the Republican party. Instead of a depreciated and fluctuating State currency we have now a National currency, of the same value from ocean to ocean, and from the lakes to the gulf, all the result of the wise policy of the Republican party. Must it go? Not while the prople want good government.

Who says the Republican party must go? The answer is, a parcel of Democrats who, with all the clamor of hungry pigs are squealing for public pap. By 4 reason and blunders they forfeited the honor which was entrusted to them, and there is no reason for retiring this party in power, Instead of a depreciated and fluctuating Democratic rule is not called for by any interest of the people. The office-seeking demagogues of the Democratic party are crying that "the Republican party must go," but what do they promise in lieu of the Republican policy? Do they promise a better currency? Do they promise better protection to American industry? Do they promise the people better educations of the promise of the results of the promise of the promise that the promise the people better educations. Do they promise the people better educa-tional facilitie? They promise nothing which they can perform. They offer no improvement in anything. They simply mean that the Republican parry must go because the aforesaid demagogues want the offices.
